

Hotel & Lodging Management

Description

The Hotel and Lodging Management program at Tulsa Tech is for students interested in entering a billion dollar enterprise with a variety of exciting job opportunities. The program combines classroom and workplace experiences to equip students with knowledge and skills in diverse areas within the hotel and lodging industry. Students will learn the duties of several line-level jobs, from restaurant and banquet server to PBX operator to front desk representative. Understanding how each department operates and interfaces with other departments is crucial for success. Students will also pursue advanced skills at the supervisory or management level in areas such as front office operations, marketing and sales, food and beverage service, leadership and management, and housekeeping. Onsite, work-based experiences at local hotels will give students valuable, hands-on training in many areas of the industry and a chance to observe and compare various supervisors and managers in action. Hotel employees trained in all facets of the industry are very valuable, with the potential for unlimited advancement. After completing this program, students may pursue a college degree in a related field or seek immediate employment.

- Practice management skills in hospitality services, gaming, & culinary arts
- Intern in the Tulsa area hotel & food service industry
- Work side-by-side with industry professionals & achieve American Hotel & Lodging Association certification
